Hongkong, October 12th, 1889. WITH the petition presented by the Chinese praying for the amendment of the Bankruptcy Ordinance we are in fullest accord The question is no new one, and years ago was thoroughly threshed out in our columns. On the 6th Pebruary, 1:79, referring to a judg- fact that the law in England has been rement of Sir John Small's in a case bankruptcy, we said :- "That the ordinary in Hongkong has left, open a wide door for fraud there can be not the slightest doubt and that it has been largely availed of by Chinese Iraders, and possibly also by persons of other nationalities, is equally cortain. A case in the Supreme Court yesterday is to some extent illustrative of the un suitability of our present Bankruptey Laws to the Chinese. A man having a claim against a pernicious system of allowing the Attorney. bankrupt is somewhat diffident of proceeding in the court here because he does not feel at all satisfied be will get anything, whereas at Capton, he says, he can recover his deb because the bankrupt has property there. So much the better for the creditor if this be so, but in many cases all the bankeunt's property is temporarily made over to friends and relatives and the wealthy trader becomes for the time being a man of straw, to blossom out into renewed prosperity immediately the bankruptcy proceedings have been concluded. THE TRADE OF LONDON.

Although Mr. Burns made fun of the theory bourers would drive shipping away from London it ought not to be dismissed too airily. No doub the fluctuations of international trade are often more difficult to explain than they are even t trace; but there can be no question of its ser esitiveness. The current flows into the easier channels with unerring accuracy, and the mos trifling obstacle may serve to cause a diversion It will be as well to remember not only that there are other British ports besides London. but also that no inconsiderable fraction of the total amount of London's trade might, under certain conditions, be transferred to foreign ports. A few figures will show how London stands. The following table gives the aggregate value of imports of foreign merchandise and exports of demestic produce at the ports named, for aix specified years :-

As a matter of fact, there has been considerable diversion of trade from London of insular and Oriental have their headquarters at London : but most of the other large lines ship at Liverpool and Glasgow. The Peninsular and Oriental left Southampton owing to difficulties with the docks, and they are prepared to return. at any rate for a time, owing to the strike i Loudon. Once divorted, there is no saying when any portion of the trade may be recovered. Then. too, the present difficulties will not with accumulative force in so far as they accentrate various difficulties under which the port of London has laboured for some time past.

The possibility that foreign ports like Autwerp, Hamburg, Havre, and others may cut into London's foreign trade is another question that forces itself upon consideration. One of the tables given above shows the value of exports from London and from great Britain generally of foreign and colonial merchandiss. London this way serves as an emporium of trade between foreign countries or between foreign countries and our colonies and dependencies. Continenta produce, instead of being brought to London for export to the Fast is being shipped in increasing quantities for direct export at portalike Antwerp fiambury, Marseilles, and Trieste, both British ships and by foreign lines. Germany for instance, is sending salt, beet sugar, and German woollen goods direct to India from porthern ports: and this direct, trade is showing signs of rapid increase. The fact that the Peninsular and Oriental Company finds it pay Franklin in answering a question put to him in the best taste and with great excuestness by the President of Yale College in 1790, wrote as follows - "You desire to know something of my religion. It is the first time I have been questioned upon it. But I cannot take your enriesity amiss, and shall endeavour in a few words to gratify it. Here is my creed. I believe in one God, the creator of the universe. That he governs it by his providence. That he ought to be worshipped. It must not be forgotten that nerve pathology includes many cases in which the distinction between fauctional and overnio di esse is by no means well marked Yat the difference is an important one. Under the former title are included a variety of unstable morbid changes capable of rapid and even total transformation; under the latter, a group in which the possibilities of improvement are in versely proportional to the organic alteration Such evidence as can be gleaned from the practice of the faith cure, equally with the clear testimony of scientific fact forbids no to doubt Antworp is highly significant .- St. Junce's that the wonders wrought at Lourdes owe their occurrence mainly to the influence of the sufferor's will refreshed by hope and acting on the Plantingsources of non-organic paresis. Statistical and historical research does not sommend itself to the Oriental mind. A Garman ethnographer, who is holiday-making in Byria with a view to the perpetration of a book of travels, was lately the guest of a very fine old sheikh, to whom he appealed for material for his contemplated opus. This was the reply he received: "Worthy friend, joy of my life! What you ask of me is wearisome and useless. Though have lived all my life in this village, I have never felt any our josity to count the house or the inhabitants. What my neighbour carries on his shoulders or the merchant over the way puls in his ships does not concern me. The former piroumstances of this district are known only to Heaven, and I have no desire to learn what wickednesses were indulged in by the unboly Giaour before the sacred sword of lalam gave the place to the true believer. And ret, O light of my conntonance! I am contented. Do thou likewise, and may thy day be bright and blessed!

Another hospital surgeon has merificed his ife to his patients. It was only last year that a bouse surgeon lost his life at Gnys through diphthoria. Now a similarly distressing event reported from St. Thomas's. Mr. Charles Brown had nearly completed his term as house surgeon at that institution, and seems to have been worn out with chise application to his ardious duties. In this condition he attended two diphtheria cases, and assisted in the extreme operations of tracheotomy. After one of these operations he had a warning in the development of illness which had for one of its characteristics the ominous symptom of sore throat. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Brown went on with his work and assisted in another trashootomy operation. By holding on until this second operation Mr. Brown was all the more virulently attroked. The next operation was performed on himself: it was the serious operation of laryngotemy. Uncels of hair, ready for sale, were found at his happily it proved of no avail, and the heroic but I have remarked that when a man tells the honest truth about himself he is all the more likely to be of use to his fellow-orestnies. To begin, then, you must know I had long been more or less subject to attacks of bronchitis, a mind instant, otherwise they will not be recomplaint that you are aware is very common cognised. and troublesome in Great Britain in certain seasons of the year. Some months ago I had a very severe turn of it, worse, I think, than I ever had before. It was probably brought on by my catching cold, as we are all apt to do when we least expect it. Weeks passed by, and my trouble proved to be very obstinate. It would not yield to medicine, and as I also began to have violent racking pains in my limbs and back, I became greatly alarmed. I could neither cat nor sleep. If I had been a feeble, sickly Steamer man, I should have thought less strangely of it; hold of me, which might make my strength of no avail against it. I say, that was the way it whence delivery may be obtained. thought.

Presently I could not even lie down for the pain all over my body. I asked my dector what he thought of my condition, and he frankly said "I am sorry to have to tell you that you are the Wharf are at liberty to do se. getting worse!" This so frightened my friends as well as myself, that they said "Thomas, you have left the Godowns, and all claims must be must go to the Hospital; it may be your only chance for life !"

But I didn't want to go to the hospital. Who does, when he thinks he can possibly get along without doing it? I am a labouring man, with a large family depending on me for support, and I might almost as well be in my grave as to be laid on my back in shospital unable to lift a hand for months, or God only knows how long. Right at this point I had a thought flash across my mind like a street of sunshine in a cloudy day. I had heard and read a good deal about Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, and I resolved before consenting to be taken to the hospital, I would try that well-known remedy. On this I gave up the doctor's medicine and began taking the Syrup. Mark the wonderful result! I had taken but three doses within twenty four hours whomee and/or from the wharves delivery may when I was seized with a fit of coughing, and threw up the phlegm and muons off my chest by This steamer has cargo ex steamers Belgravia. the mouthful. The Syrup had loosened and broken it up. Continuing with the Syrup, the racking pain, which I believe come from the bitter and poison humours in my blood and joints, To-DAY soon left me entirely, and I felt like going to sleep, and I did sleep sound and quiet. Then I felt hungry, with a natural appetite, and as I ate I soon got strong and well.

I felt I could leap through the air with delight : In a week I was able to go to my work again. It doesn't seem possible, yet it is true, and the neighbours know it. There are plenty of witnesses to prove it. And, therefore, when I say I preach the good news of the great power of Seigel's Syrup to cure pain and disease far and wide, nobody will wonder at me.

THE FAIRBROTHERS.

Now when the Fairbrothers concluded tha they could never give rest to their tender consolences until they had done right by their poor eister Greeba they set themselves streightway to consider the ways and means. Ballacrains they must sell in order that its proceeds migh be taken to Greebs as her share and interest; but Ballacraine belonged to Jacob, and another provision would forthwith need to be made for him. So after much arguing and some nagging across the hearth of the kitchen at Lague it was decided that each of Jacob's five brothers should mortgage his farm to one-sixth its value, and that the gross sum of their five sixths should be Jacob's for his share. This arrangement would him. have the disadvantage of leaving Jacob without land, but he showed a magnanimous spirit in that relation. " Don't trouble about me." be, "it's sweet and nice to do a kindness to your own brothers." And four of his brethren applanded that sentiment, but Thurstan curled up his red nose and thought, "Aw, yes, of coorse, a powerful big boiler of brotherly love the little miser keeps going under his weskit." And having so decided they further concluded to see the crops off the ground, and then lose no time in carrying out their design. "Let's harvest-home, "and then off for Marky the Lord," The person who went by this name was one Mark Skillicorn, an advocate, of Ramsey, who combined the functions of pettifogger with those of moneyand plausible and facetious. He was a distant relative of the Fairbrothers by the side of their got into trouble but he became a client of Marky the Lord's, that no client of Marky the Lord's did not in the end go altogether to the had, and that poor Marky the Lord never had a client who did not die in his debt. Nevertheless Marky the Lord grew richer se his losses grew heavier, and more facctious as his years increased. Ob. be was a funny dog, was Marky the Lord; but there was just one dog on the island a shade or two funnier still, and that was Jacob Fairbrother. This thrifty soul had for many a year kept a nest of private savings, and even in the days when he and his brothron went down to make a poor month before their father at Castletown he had money secretly lent out on the conscientious interest of only three per cent. above the legal rate. And thus it chanced that when Ballacraine was advertised in big-letters on every barn door in the north of Mann, Jacob Fairbrother, went down to Marky the Lord, said made a private bargain to buy it in again. So when the day of the sale came, and Marky the Lord strode over the fields with some thirty men-farmers, miners, advocates, and parsons—at his heels, and then drew up on the roadside by the "Hibernian," and there mounted the till-board of a cart for the final reckoning, little Jacob was too much moved to be present, though his brothers were there, all glooming around on the outside of the group, with their hands in their breeches pockets. Bellscraine was knocked down chesp to some body that nobody knew, and then came the work of the mortgages; an once again Jacob went off to Marky the Lord, and bargained to be made mortgagor, though no one was to be a whit the wiser. And ten per cent, he was to get from each of his five brothers for the use of the money which next day came back to his own hands. Thus far all was straight dealing, but with the approach of the time to go to Iceland the complications graw thick. Jacob had so husbanded his money that while seeming to spen he still possessed it, and now he was troubled t know where to lodge that portion of it which he should not want in Iceland and might find it unsafe to take there. And while he was in the throes of his uncertainty his brothers—all save John-were in the traveil of their own big con-Now Asher, Stean, Ross, and Thurstan, having each made up his mind that he would go to Ice-mortgage. So thinking that Jacob must have more than he could want, they approached him one by one confidentially and alyly. And wondroug were the lies they told him, for they dare not confess that their sole need of money was to go to Iceland after him, and watch him that he did not cheat them when Greebs sent them all their fortunes in return for their brotherly love of her.

And last of all came Thurstan, made well drunk for the better support of his courage, and he maudled and sried, "What d'ye think ! Poor Ballabeg a dead-him that used to play the fiddle at church-and the old person wants me to take Ballabeg's place up in the gallery loft. Knowing nothing of this, Asher, Stean, self adroitly to an important question, and get Ross and Thurston each in his turn stole down to Marky the Lord to borrow the sum he needed. Then the four men began to double their fists. "Wait!" said Asher. "Are you the grasp ing young miser that asked fourteen per cent. He is clear enough," said Stean. "Well," said Thursten, "I really think -look you, boys. I really do think, but I speak under correction - I really think, all things considered, this Jacob is a dammed rescal."

"I may have the advantage of him in years. said Asher, doubling up his sleeves, "but if "Go to the davil," said Jacob, and he went below, boiling hot with rame. It was idle to keep up the quarrel, for ver soon all six were out on the high seas, bound each others' company at bed and board, and doomed to pass the better part of a fortnight together. So before they came to Iceland they were good friends after their fashion, though that was perhaps the fashion of est and mouse and being landed at Reykjavik they were once more in their old relations, with Jacob as pursebearer and spokesman. "And now listen." said that thrifty person.

"What's it saving? 'A bird in the hand worth two in the bush.' We've got our birds den pounds that Ballacraine fetched at the sale with it let us make sure about the two in the

With that intention they marked inquiries, best they could touching the position of Michael Bunlocks, his salary and influence. And in spite of the difficulties of lapprage they heard and saw enough to satisfy them. Old Iceland was awaken ing from a bad dysam of three bad centuries and setting to work with a will to become a power among the States; the young President, Michael Bunlocks, was the restorer and protector of heriberties, fame and honour were before him, and before all who laid a hand to his plough. This was what they heard in many jargons on every side."

It's all right," whispered Jacob, "and now They had landed late in the day of Greeba's visit to Red Jason at the little house of detention, and had heard of her marriage, of its festivities, and of the attempt on the life of the President. But though they knew that Jason was no longer in Mann they were too much immersed in their own vast schemes to put two and two together, until next morning they came upon the sad procession bound for the Sulphur Mines, and saw that Jason was one of the prisoners. They were then on their way to Government House, and Jacob said with a wink, do any harm to have two strings to your bow?" The others laughed at that, and John nudged Thurstan and said, "Isn't he a boy!" Thurstan grunted and tradged on. When they arrived at the kitchen door of house they asked for Greebs by her new name. and after some inarticulate fencing with a fat Icelandic cook, the little English maid was

The maid returned to ask them to follow, and "Oh, yes, you're a pretty pack of wise asses, "That I've sworn not to tell," said Marky they went after her, stroking their lank hair you are," said Jacob, bitterly. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is A PURILY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, both in fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises appearance and taste, furnishing a most agree- for students of a most instructive nature. Both seas to pay people what there was never on call stie method of administering the only certain the Court and Punti pronunciations are given Batauma the accents being carefully marked on the best It is a perfectly soft and mild preparation, and principle hitherto attained. The typography what it cost me to come, and get away straight. is especially adapted for Children. pace, schieving a clearness not previously Benlarig attained, and dispensing with those vast margins | Bombey and vacant spaces which have heretofere characterised Chinese publications. To illustrate the vest score of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16.000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst Has Chang this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely re- Kuling quires examples to display the various appli- Kung Wo cations and equivalents of different words which Metapedia have one general meaning. Of these examples Ningchow this work contains more than five times as Palinurus

many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub. Pacching For practical purposes the arrangement of Peiping the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English Poochi to communicate effectively with natives who Saikig-maru understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect Shanghai the work will be found indispensable to all Sinn-chang Europeans residing in China, and to the natives | Sual themselves it explains subjects fully with which Sutlej very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. Trifels To parties resident in England and interested Tankushi Maru Oct. in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion- Wismar
